Paraguayan architect and artist Pedro Barrail will once again exhibit his original creations at Art Basel in Switzerland, to be held in the aforementioned European city, between June 10 and 16.

The exhibition will expose some of the design creations, which have carved motifs of the Pãi tavyterã ethnic group.

The pyrography, according to what the designer explained to EFE, consists of engraving the wood with metallic or tacuara wood objects heated by charcoal, with motifs that mix the ideas and traditions of the aforementioned indigenous people with the expressions of rationality of the art of Barrail.

The fire-engraved drawings, which give the stamp of identity to his work, were carved by Nery and Gerardo Aquino, according to ideas that emerged from conversations with the designer, who insisted that, although there is initial planning for the object, “ they arise spontaneously ”.

El arquitecto y artista paraguayo Pedro Barrail volverá a exhibir sus originales creaciones en la Art Basel de Suiza, que se celebrará en la referida ciudad europea, entre el 10 y el 16 de junio.
